THE CASE OF THE BASE

THE OWL detective puffed out his chest and looked very important. "I, sir, am the greatest detective in the whole, wide world! If you need a detective, you couldn't have come to a better owl!"

Mr. Grunt looked uncertain. "Well, I do need a detective to guard my house," he said. "I'm a very rich man, you see. But I'm not certain you're the fellow for the job!"

"I am Whoo-Doodit!" said the owl. "There is no other detective! Why, I've solved hundreds of cases . . . thousands of 'em! There was the case of Mary, who lost her lamb. I found him! There was the case of the three little kittens who lost their mittens. I found 'em! I can solve anything!"

"Well, I'd like some proof," Mr. Grunt began.

"Listen!" whispered Whoo-Doodit. "Do you hear what I hear? There is some criminal act going on right now, outside this very window!"

Through the window came the sounds of shouting voices. "He stole home base! He stole home base!" they yelled.

"Someone has stolen something," said the great detective. "Follow me and I'll soon find the thief! That'll convince you that I'm the fellow for your job!"

He rushed down the steps with Mr. Grunt puffing after him. "I think you're making a mistake . . ."

"I never make mistakes!" said Whoo-Doodit. "Now then, that looks like the culprit if ever I saw one!"

He seized a small boy pig who was surrounded by other boys, all shouting, "He stole home base!"

"All right, you young villain!" said Whoo-Doodit. "Confess! If you're such a thief, you probably stole the first base, as well! And second! And third! In fact, you probably stole all the bases there are! Why did you do it? Where did you put them? Admit everything at once or I'll turn you over to the police!"

Here, he shook the little boy pig so hard, that the little boy pig's tail uncurled. "I . . . I . . . I . . ."

"Guilty conscience, eh?" said Whoo-Doodit, shaking him even harder. "Can't talk, eh? Well, we'll soon shake the truth out of you!"

"Hey, wait a minute, stop shakin' Grunty!" yelled one of the boys. "He just won our baseball game! He just stole home! You leave him alone . . . he's our star player!"

"B . . . baseball? S . . . star p . . . player?" Whoo-Doodit looked very foolish indeed. "I . . . er . . . seem to have made a mistake!"

"You certainly have!" snorted Mr. Grunt angrily. "What's more, that lad happens to be my son! Will you kindly stop shaking him?"

The great detective stopped immediately. "Sorry," he said. "Well anyhow, how about giving me that job, Mr. Grunt?"

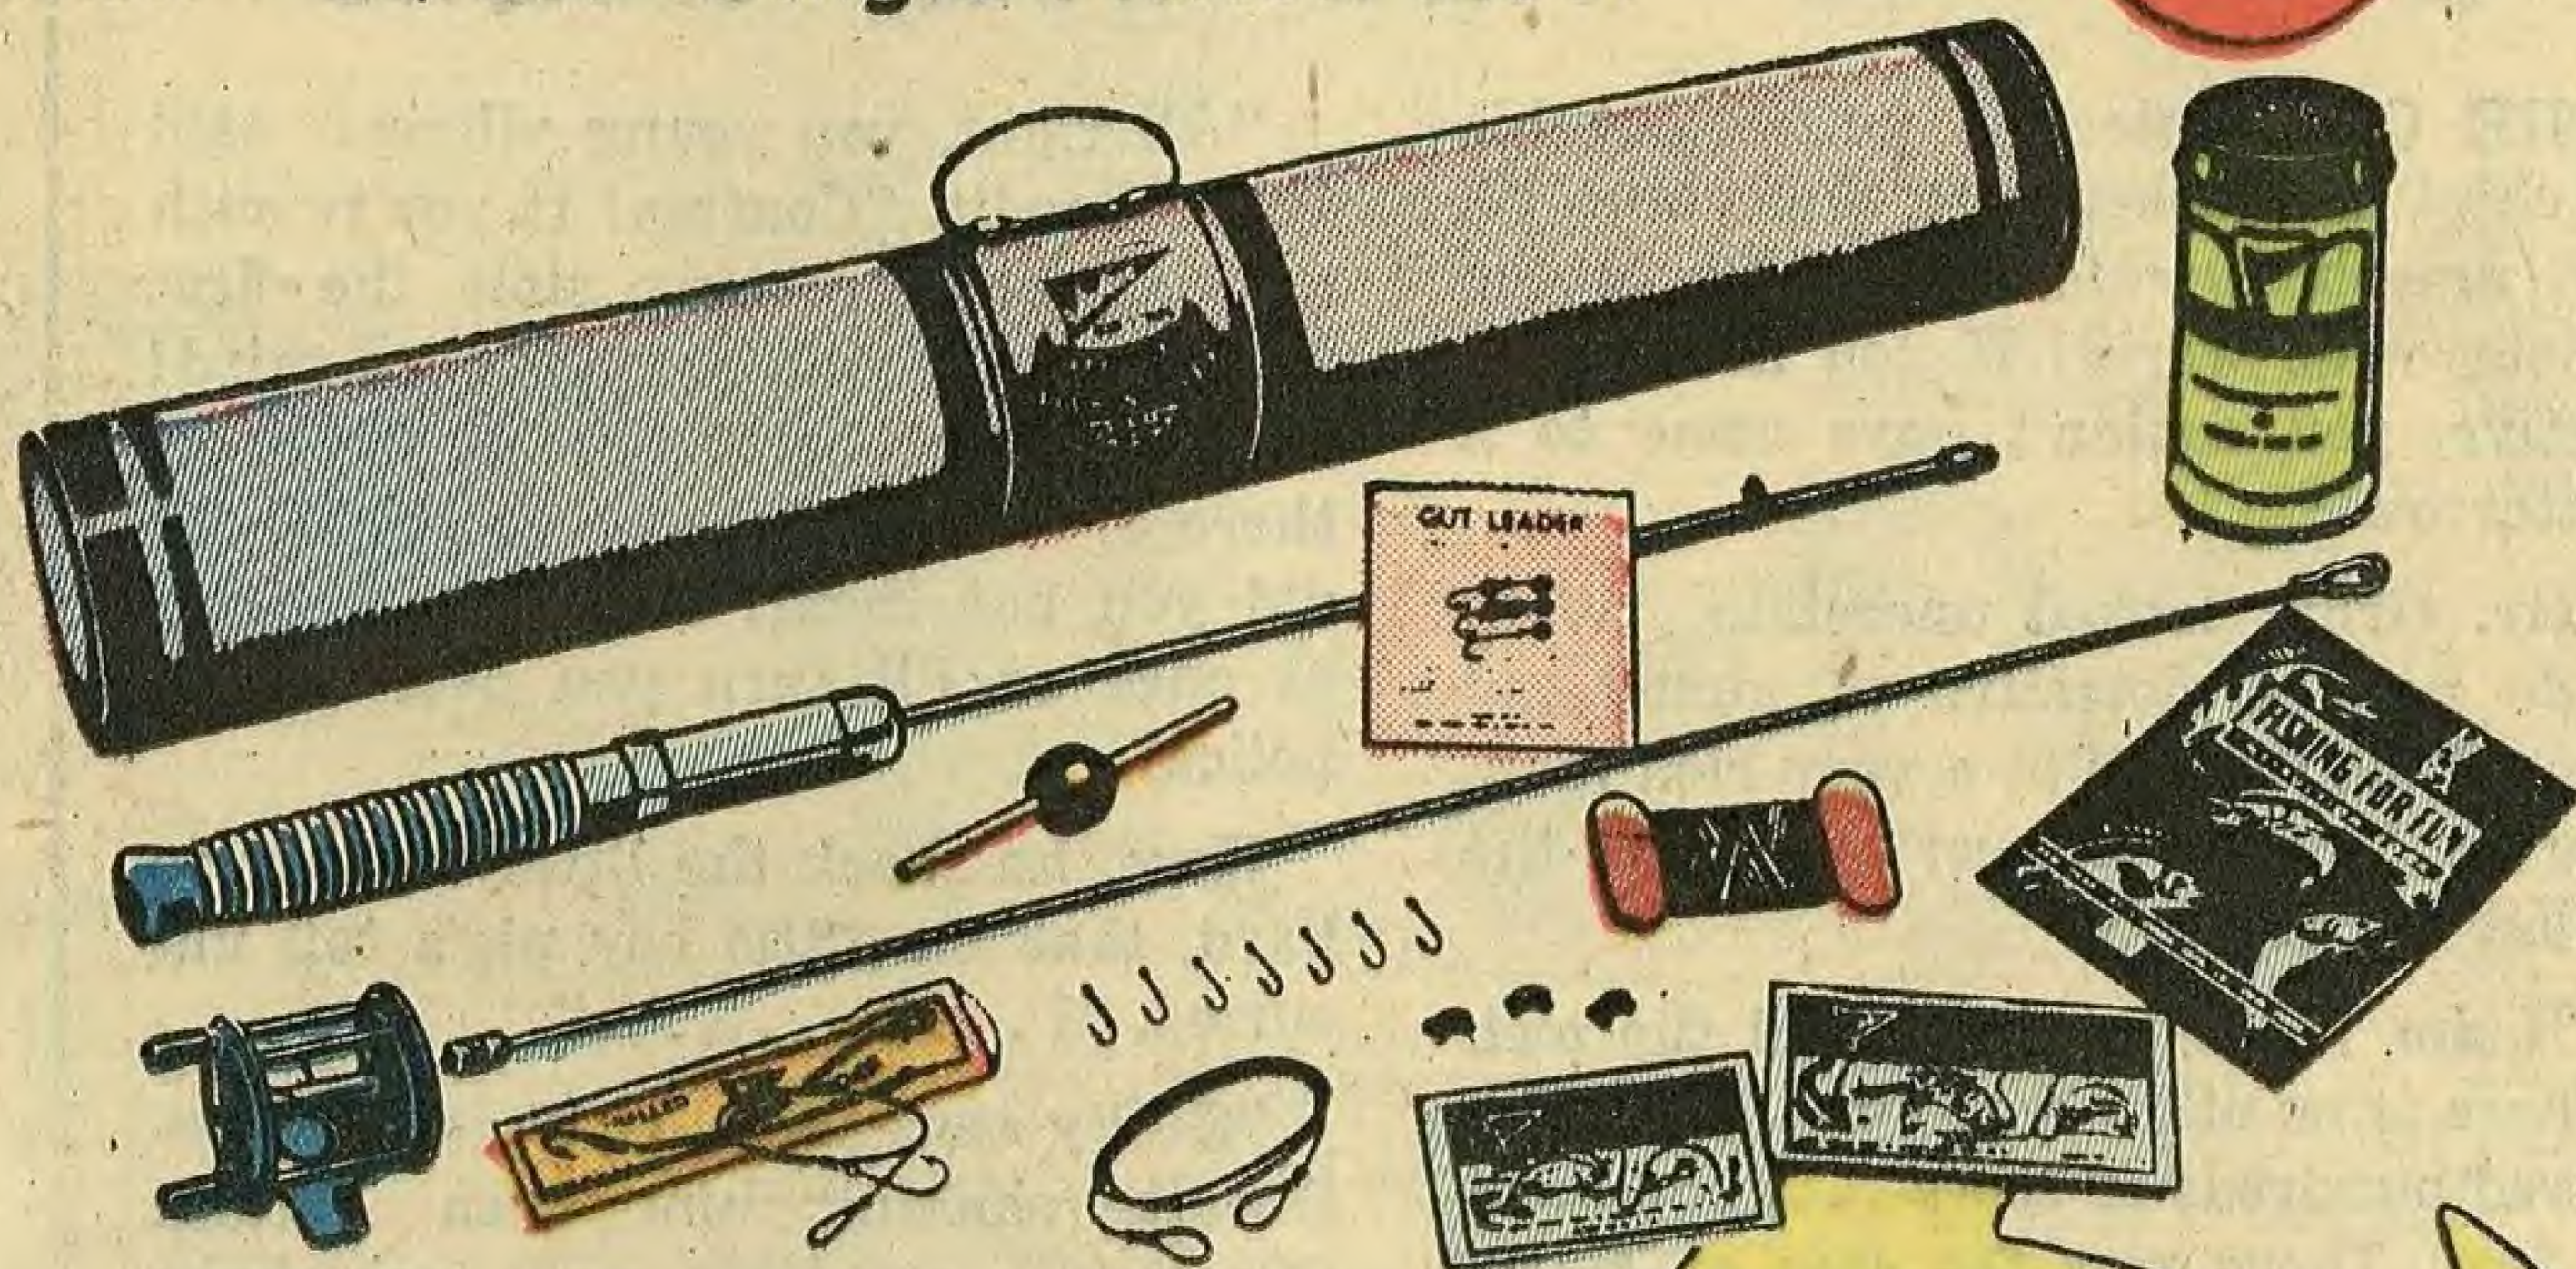

"You?" laughed Mr. Grunt. "If someone asked you to find a needle in a haystack, you couldn't even find the haystack! Goodbye!"

The great detective returned sadly to his office. "I could too find the haystack," he said to himself. And then he added, "I think!"

BLUNDERBUNNY

and the great AH-CHOO!

"AH-CHOO!" sneezed Bunky. "Ah-choo, ah-choo, ah-choo!"

"Got a sneezing fit, huh, Bunky?" Blunderbunny said.

"Mmm-hmm, and I've tried everything to stop it! Holding my breath, putting my face in a paper bag, crossing my eyes - -"

"That stuff's corny!" Blunderbunny laughed. "I will cure your sneezing with my super-special anti-sneeze invention!"

"But where . . . ah-choo! . . . is it?" asked Bunky.

Blunderbunny began to collect sticks of wood and bits of metal. "I'm gonna invent and build it right now!" he announced. Working like a beaver, Blunderbunny began to nail the sticks together until he had built an enormous box, right in the middle of the street. Into this, he put an old iron stove and some garden hose he found in the lot.

"Now, you stand in front o' this," he told Bunky. "First, I'll shoot water at ya! Then, I'll make flames come at ya! Then water! Then flames! If the water doesn't stop the sneezing, the fire will!"

Sneezing so hard he could hardly stand up, Bunky stood where Blunderbunny showed him and waited.

"Let 'er go!" yelled Blunderbunny.

Water and fire began to pour out of the strange contraption, scaring Bunky half out of his wits. Bunky wasn't the only one who was scared, either. From all sides, neighbors saw the smoke and the streams of water!

Eeeeeeeeeeee! wailed the fire engine sirens.

Oooooooooooooo! wailed the police sirens.

"Here, here!" shouted the fire chief angrily, as he arrived on the scene. "Who's responsible for this?" He oughta be arrested!"

"And I'll arrest him!" snapped the police captain, as he drove up. "Startin' a fire, blockin' a city street, causin' a riot . . ."

Blunderbunny and Bunky didn't wait to hear the rest of it.

"Run!" Blunderbunny yelled. "Ah-choo!" sneezed Bunky.

"There they go!" shouted the bystanders. "They started it! Follow 'em!"

Blunderbunny and Bunky ran as fast as they could. After them, came the firemen, the policemen and all the neighbors for blocks around.

"Catch 'em!"

"Stop 'em!"

"Arrest 'em!"

"Throw 'em in jail!"

Blunderbunny and Bunky heard these cries come nearer and nearer and, they ran even faster. But it was no use! Twist and turn as they would, they were trapped and dragged straight off to jail.

Bunky was very sorrowful as he sat in the small cell alongside Blunderbunny. "You and your crazy ideas!" he said. "Why don't you stop inventing things that keep getting us into trouble?"

Blunderbunny looked hurt. "My invention made the police an' firemen come," he answered, "an' they chased us an' scared us an' ran us ragged . . . an' frightened all your sneezes away! So how can you say my invention's no good?"

Bunky just looked disgusted. "Ah-choo!" he said.

INKLESS-STAINLESS
G-MEN
FINGERPRINT SET

WHAT KIND OF FINGERPRINTS DO YOU HAVE?

Examine the tips of your fingers and you will notice the formation of ridges. These ridges usually form a LOOP, an ARCH, or a WHORL.

A LOOP fingerprint is one where the ridges enter on the side of the print and then recurve making a backward turn to flow out on the same side they entered.

An ARCH fingerprint is one where the ridge enters on one side of the impression and flows to the other side of the impression without turning back.

A WHORL is a fingerprint in which the ridges form a series of circles around the core of the pattern.

HOW ARE FINGERPRINTS CLASSIFIED?

Police Depts. have many millions of fingerprint cards in their files. Each fingerprint card must be filed under some system so it can be quickly and easily found. Learn what the DELTA and CORE are in a fingerprint, and why they are important for fingerprint classification.

No Two Fingerprints are Alike

Police Departments and Federal Agencies have never found two fingerprints that are alike. See for yourself. Get the inkless-stainless G-MEN Fingerprint Set... take your friends' fingerprints and notice the different characteristics in the ridge formations.

DEVELOP LATENT PRINTS

A latent print is a fingerprint, not visible to the naked eye left on furniture, glassware, etc. These latent prints are caused by the oily secretion on the tips of the fingers. Learn how to develop and make visible latent prints with the inkless-stainless G-MEN fingerprint set.
